

Bank of Alaska Will Open On Mon. May. 8th

The Bank of Alaska will formally open its doors for business in Wrangell next Monday morning at 10 A.M. Mr. Andrew Stevenson, President of the Bank had hoped to be present but unavoidable business called him to Seattle. Mr. H. L. Faulkner, Attorney for the Bank at Juneau, will be present, and together with the Cashier, Mr. W. H. Warren, will open the doors of the Bank of Alaska at Wrangell.

The quarters of the Bank in the Wrangell Hotel Building have been fitted with modern bank fixtures by Messrs. Campbell and Weber and present a most attractive appearance. The furniture is of a rich golden oak of the most up to date type. The massive safe is absolutely fire and burglar proof with inside money chest protected with every known safety device. The lobby has been furnished with a beautiful rug and library table and chairs for the convenience of visitors.

Bank extends a cordial invitation to all to call and inspect the new quarters.

Ira Robinson was a passenger south on the Alki bound for a visit to his old home in Goldfield Nev.

Mrs. J. G. Grant and son Neil are both sick with the La Grippe.

The remainder of the crew of the Sanitary Packing Company arrived up on the City of Seattle last night.

Mrs. Dolly Walton will be a passenger on the mail boat to Craig where she will work this summer.

Marshall Wallace, Frank Adams and Pete Jensen returned from Juneau, where they were summoned as witnesses in the Krouse Case.

The new Sanitary Cannery tender Sirius arrived up from Seattle last evening. The new tender is a seine model boat and will certainly make a good addition to the Sanitary fleet.

The big cannery ship, Star of Greenland, of the local A. P. A. Cannery, came in early yesterday morning towed by the big tender Chilkat.

Happy Days.
However varied the course of our life, whatever the nature of our work and ambition through which it has swept along, still, when in memory we would revive the times that were comparatively the happiest, those times will be found to have been the calmest.—Bulwer Lytton.

An Old Proverb.
The proverb "Necessity is the mother of invention" can hardly be traced to one independent source. The idea was expressed by Persius, the Roman satirist, about 60 A. D. and is found in the precise form now quoted in Richard Francis's "Northern Memoirs" (printed in London in 1604) and in various later English writers.

Electromagnets.
Joseph Henry was the first to construct electromagnets in a useful form. In 1822 at the Albany academy he succeeded in ringing a bell over a mile of wire.

Cork.
Cork was known to the Greeks and Romans and was put to almost as many uses as at present, although there is no mention in Rome of linoleum, not withstanding its Roman sound. Glass bottles, with cork stoppers, for wine and beer did not come into use until the middle of the fourteenth century.

Soap Bubbles.
To make satisfactory soap bubbles dissolve the best castile soap in water and add glycerin. Take one part of castile soap, twenty parts of water and fifteen parts of glycerin, all by weight.

A Tea Test.
Unwholesome tea can be detected in the following simple manner: Turn out the infused leaves, and if they are of a good brown color the tea will be wholesome. But if the leaves are black and of a rotten texture, with an oily appearance, the tea will not be fit to drink.

Shaping Our Ends.

The manulurist is the destiny that shapes our ends.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

What's the matter with the chiropodist?—Toledo Blade.

Supreme Court Justice Delany decides that a barber cannot legally practice chiropody. What is needed now is a decision that the domestic razor must not be borrowed for amateur effort of that kind.—New York World

The Crantara.
Crantara was a military signal employed by the Scottish highland chiefs. It was a fire brand or wooden cross, which after being dipped in the blood of a goat was sent by a swift footed herald, who delivered it without a word save the name of the place of rendezvous. The fleetest runner of that hamlet was instantly dispatched with the signal to the next, whence it was borne to a third, and so on until every village within the chief's domain had received the summons. It was last circulated in 1745.

Foretelling the Weather.
Here are a few hints for foretelling the following day's weather: First of all, look at the northwest for your weather. However threatening the sky may appear, if you see a bit of blue in the northwest you won't have a steady downpour. At the worst it will only be showery.

If the day has been very fine and the blue sky is suddenly speckled over in the evening with little curly clouds then look out for a change of weather. The longer they take to form the longer the time before the change comes about.

A red sun in the early morning is a bad sign, for there will be war weather before the next twenty-four hours are over. Though the sky at sunrise may be absolutely cloudless, yet if the eastern horizon is red or orange the clouds will roll up and rain pouring will last before daylight.

Evening red and morning gray.
Two sure signs of one fine day.
